What Every RIA Should Know About Life Insurance Outsourcing

Independent advisors have valid concerns when it comes to optimally grow their practice. In addition to solid investment management, advisors are pushed to provide holistic income tax, estate tax, and legacy advice. Insurance planning is a key part of this process. How RIA's deal with it varies widely.

Some RIAs with insurance experience have established connections; however, these can be simple bi-lateral arrangements with insurance carriers, resulting in limited choice and less competitive outcomes. The vast majority of RIA practices have simply avoided the provision of this vital service to their clients, particularly those who have recently rolled out of the wirehouse environment. As the independent RIA community has grown, it has struggled to find a gateway that marries specialized planning advice, choice of provider, and compatibility with client stakeholders.

The key to delivering best in class insurance outcomes is through outsourcing and partnership with the right experts. In the same way selected investment capabilities are delegated to Mutual, Hedge, and Private Equity Fund managers, advisors must draw on the expertise of specialists for Estate, Legacy, and Insurance planning. Specialized brokerage general agencies, or BGA's, have begun to appear that specifically designed to help RIAs and their unique business models.

Why Outsource to a BGA? Spoiler: Single carriers and most agents can't do these.

- ✓ Access a broad range of insurance carriers and their unique offerings.
- ✓ Have a partner advocate for you across carriers to push for better pricing, classifications, and outcomes.
- ✓ Have a partner broadly experienced in UHNW investor psychology, complex taxation, coordination of tax, and legal advisors.
- ✓ Have a partner that can work with existing policies and strategies to convert, add, or retire products regardless of carrier and previous strategy.
- ✓ Have a partner to assist ongoing review and after sales service for policies as and when family situations, taxation, policy, or market changes occur.

The RIA community has a vast range of business models, specialization, and requirements for partnership expertise. BGA's aligned for RIA workflow recognize this and have the ability to pivot between empowering advisors with an assisted sales model, supporting the advisor in the background with expertise, case management, and administrative support, and/or seconding a specialist to offer full support, co-handling the client relationship. This is not offered elsewhere.

The cornerstone of the RIA philosophy is putting clients first, championing transparency, and delivering holistic advice. Make sure you are upholding these ideals when integrating insurance into your client's financial futures. Find your nearest specialist BGA and see what they can achieve for you.
